

Monts-de-Vaucluse by horseback

Joucas

Sur les hauteurs de Murs (Florence Farcot - Centre équestre de Joucas)

A long walk where forests and crops, rocky valleys and open areas, wild valleys and villages of stone succeed each other.

To go horseback riding on this great route on the south side of the Monts-de-Vaucluse, is the guarantee of a great trip! From the back of your horse, between paths and stony trails, you will enjoy the view of multiple terraces and dry stone walls, the wild beauty of the place and of the harmony of the landscapes and vast views of Monts-de-Vaucluse, Ventoux and Luberon.

Useful information

Practice : HORSEBACK

Duration : 4 h 30

Length : 21.5 km

Trek ascent : 680 m

Difficulty : Medium

Type : Boucle

Themes : Flora, Geology, Heritage and history

Accessibility : Donkey hiking

Trek

Departure : car park on the left at the foot of the village of Joucas

Arrival : village of Joucas

Markings :  Equestre  GR®  PR

2- At the Col de Murs, go left, continue on the main track for 3.5 km and reach the D244. Cross the road and turn right lower down on a trail. Lead back to the D244 and the Col 100 m downstream.

3- At the col des Trois Termes (pole), turn left on the D177, then 50 m further down, go down the path to the left until the creek of Puy Neuf. There, climb the other side and after a steep slope, cross the area of the Dalle des Busans. At the exit of a road, turn right, then 200 m further, turn left on a path along an old meadow. Go straight, turn slightly on the left and then switch until you reach a wider path. Cross a short passage between two walls (can be avoided by taking a right turn) and go straight on the paved road to the D15.

4- At the intersection "Fontanille", leave the marked horse routes and go up the road to the left for 750 m. Go down a gravel path and reach the heights of the gorges of Véroncle (lectern). Continue straight on the path (PR) that descends to the hamlet of Grailles. Upon arrival on the tarmac, turn left (markup GRP®), cross the small bridge, go along an old mill, then go up the path on the left. Turn right 50 m further, then immediately on the right again, to land on a track (markup PR). Cross and remain across on the small road that leads back to Joucas.

Here, time stops... (A)

Between Ventoux and Luberon, this wooded limestone massif opens onto rare agricultural parcels. Contemporary human presence is discreet but the wealth of the dry stone heritage is a reminder of its historical presence. A network of winding roads and ancient mule tracks serve the hilltop villages alongside the massif. These roads, dotted with remarkable oaks, reinforce the bucolic character of this countryside that seems frozen as if it was timeless.

The castle of Murs (B)

It was around year 1.000 that the land of Murs is given to the Agoult family who will build a castle. For four centuries, it was mainly a stronghold for the soldiers of the lord and the dungeon was then built there. After the Agoult family, came the weapons of the Astouaud family which you can see on the castle gate. The church was built in a Romanesque style in the 12th century inside the castle. The building is private and therefore closed to the public.

Crillon le Brave, life of a warrior (C)

At the heart of the village of Murs hides the birth house of Crillon le Brave, born in 1543. Born Louis de Berton des Balbes, he will then become Crillon and will continue to wage war. He accompanied 5 kings of France, Henri II, François II, Charles IX, the Duke of Anjou who became Henri III, and it was Henri IV, his comrade, who gave him the name Brave Crillon. His life was made of battles, wounds and victories. He died in 1615 in Avignon, a victim of his countless injuries.

First wood fuel boiler of PACA (D)

All of Remourase houses the very first collective energy wood boiler in the Luberon ... and even in the region! Established in 2000 during the redevelopment of a former holiday camp, it can heat 6 public housing, a lodge, a community hall and 5 local professionals. It is a renewable energy that contributes to the maintenance and the enhancement of the forest land. Since then, more than 40 boiler rooms of this type were carried out in Luberon.

The Upper Valley of Sénancole (E)

This site spans over 45ha and is a centre for biodiversity. On its dry lawns, no less than 214 species of Mediterranean and mountain plants, including 13 rare species, are present such as Mountain Inula or the Ophrys drumana, 53 species of butterflies and 27 species of crickets and grasshoppers. Breeding birds or few amphibians complete this ecological wealth, hence the need to preserve this Natura 2000 site by joint management.

Gorges de Véroncle (F)

The water flow between the collapsed ditch of Murs located on the heights of the limestone plateau and the Apt basin downstream, dug this impressive canyon called "raccordement". Then the corrosive action of rain water containing carbon dioxide has gradually, through dissolution, enlarged cracks to create true underground networks. The Gorges de Véroncle are not used or hardly used by water, but contain an amazing industrial heritage.

The Grailles mill (G)

There are a few remains of this mill dating from the 16th century, deeply restored and transformed into a dwelling. Beyond the changes, it is similar in its operation to the Cabrier mill upstream and constitutes one of the last of the 10 mills along the Véroncle.
